Q1. There has been lots of debate in recent years about the relationship between religion and violence. To what extent do you agree or disagree with each of the following statements?

Base: All respondents

Summary table

		Religions are inherently violent	The teachings of religions are essentially peaceful	Most religious violence is really about other things, like politics, socio-economic issues, or Western foreign policy	It is religious extremists, not religions themselves, that are violent	Most of the wars in world history have been caused by religions	On balance, religions are much more peaceful today than violent	The world would be a more peaceful place if no one was religious	The world would be a more peaceful place if no one believed in God
